If you're like lots of the Awards Pupils, more details is most likely still wanted by you. Here's Representative of the Honors Faculty, Professor Charles Dellheim, detailing how Kilachand Honors students stick out from individuals in a traditional honors system:

'What are we looking for? We're trying to find people that are intellectually curious, not unmotivated; they could have a rigorous fascination with the matters. Plenty of our pupils are performing an amount of things that are various. I'll inform you what we don't want: If you're an English main, or perhaps a chemist, or a violinist, and all you could genuinely wish to do is English or chemistry or guitar; in the event you don't need to find out about additional professions as well as other ways of taking a look at the planet, you would be really sad in the Kilachand Respects Faculty, since that's not our intent. People are given lots of possibilities, particularly while in the second-year, to follow their own passions; actually, we require them to accomplish this. What we wish are pupils who will engage with distinct suggestions, different ways of taking a look at the entire world, various practices, distinct ways. As well as individuals who will enjoy being in a residential area that is composed of learners from all over the College.
